BASIC IMMUNOLOGY FOR STUDENTS OF MEDICINE AND BIOLOGY

EDITED BY LS SALIMONU

This is a standard textbook on basic immunology written by immunologists essentially for undergraduate and postgraduate students, teachers and researchers in medicine and biology.

Contents

This edition introduces basic immunology to undergraduate and postgraduate medical and biological students in the West African sub-region as well as teachers and researchers in immunology related areas. The role of the immune system in health and disease is highlighted. It has 22 chapters. Chapter 1 introduces the reader to basic concepts in immunology. The first eleven chapters deal with the immune system. Chapters 12-16 highlight how the basic concepts in Immunology affect our understanding of disease processes. Chapters 17-19 deal with understanding of disease processes. Chapter 17-19 deals with role of infections. Chapter 20 discusses the role of infection and nutrition on immunity and Chapter 21 deals with effect of development and ageing on the immune system. Molecular Biology and Biotechnology is treated in Chapter 22.
